SOCIALIZED RECITATION METHOD

The socialized recitation is often designed as a method. In reality it is an Ideal rather than a procedure, but as an ideal it has had great influence in promoting better understanding among students and between teacher and students. It was designed to eliminate the formal and stilted are that seems to pervade many classrooms and bring academic resilience to substitute a sense of freedom and naturalness.

Socialized recitation may be called socialized discussion. The socialized procedure has brought about more significant assignments, more student activity, and in some instances, a liberalization of school control. Teaching is not a mechanical process. Some teacher are well adapted to by this method, other might create an atmosphere of artificiality by being it too liberally. Classes vary, then again, the mental ability and the social background of the individual propels if different classes vary greatly.

Prof. Harol Benjamin has described the following aims of socialize recitation method

1. To develop useful technique for cooperative works.
2. To arouse intelligent thinking.
3. To proceed previous knowledge.
4. To encourage creative expression.
